Three body shells are available — a threedoor hatchback, a twodoor saloon and a threedoor Coupe. All engines are derived from the wellproven units which have appeared in previous versions of the VW Polo. The engine is of fourcylinder overhead camshaft design, mounted transversely, with the transmission mounted on the lefthand side. All models have a four or fivespeed manual transmission.

Your Polo manual All models have fullyindependent front suspension and employ coiloverdamper struts, transverse lower arms and an antiroll bar. The rear suspension is semiindependent, utilising coiloverdamper struts and incorporating trailing arms located by a torsion beam axle. A rear antiroll bar is fitted to certain models. I this site works for me except the page that shows the location of the MAP on my engine is different from my engine, turns out it is for the New Beetle L41.9L DSL Turbo ALH 2003 I simply cannot find anything about the location for the MAP Mass Air Pressure sensor I have looked at many many diagrams and photos and none of them look like my engine. Maybe it was modified at some point. I read something about a way to modify the way fuel is fed to the engine. I get a P0108 error on my OBDII and that changed from a P0234 and amber light i was getting from my power loss on hills turn key off it resets for awhile, which i fixed seemingly by cleaning the MAF and replacing the very dirty air filter. Then drove car for an hour and going up a small hill i got the power loss again. Am pretty confused at this point about what exactly to do next.
